

Humanity

Unremittingly
- while the clock ticks on - I encounter a cleft world where the future is held captive harsh and grim

While
in the radiant colours
of daylight dawning
the bird of peace spreads her wings to find the rainbow

I yearn for evenness
with no restriction
where humanity lives and loves and prays

I yearn for sunset and twilight and a moonlit night dissolving sadness
suffering and pain

In this world
where there is no frowning away no blood in the streets no songs sung in minor I hear the joyful laughter of an innocent child

In this world
all fighters decide to cast off their helmets to unlock their brains
to defrost their hearts

And,
in the echo of twirling iron all fears are pushed aside

I rise
to accomplish a world where tolerance and peace
will be the oxygen
of the future

Let humanity be my guide